

Roberta Carter, Dwight Hurst Are Married

A midnight service on the evening of Jan. 23 united in marriage Miss Roberta Jeanne Carter and Dwight Leonard Hurst.

The double-ring rite was officiated by the Rev. John H. Cuddy, pastor of the Faith Missionary Church, and Dr. Edward Cole, pastor of the First Baptist Church, in the Faith Church.

The church was decorated with a white archway and fine arrangements of lily and two floral arrangements of gladioli and chrysanthemums.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. R. S. Carter, 464 Chester Pl., and the late Mr. Carter, was escorted to the altar by her uncle, Edwin L. Carter of San Dimas.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Hurst of 3703 San Bernardino St., Montclair.

For her wedding, Miss Carter selected a gown of anemone lace over tulle and satin. The side-walloped skirt ended in a four-foot train. The gown was designed and made by D. Cataldi of Pomona.

A tiara held her fingertips while she shimmered in earrings and a necklace presented her by the bridegroom.

The bridal bouquet was of feathered white carnations, white lilyanths and white-white hydrangeas.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Daniel Smith. Bridesmaids were Mrs. James Smith, a sister, Mrs. Gerald Butler, Miss Carolyn Hurst, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Sharon Spencer.

They were matching gowns of red velveteen accented with finished white tulle. The bridesmaids wore of white fur and each carried a white fur muff and red streamers and corsages.

Miss Deborah Smith, who is the flower girl, her dress, too, was of red velveteen.

The wedding party was Miss Cheryl Stewart and Miss Claire Stewart. Their gowns were red velveteen and white tulle organza.

The fire heater was a cousin of the bridegroom, John Owsen.

Standing at the altar with the bridegroom as his best man was his brother, James M. Hurst. Seating the guests were Ed Rollin, Ruth and Homewood, Dennis Hurst, and brother of the bridegroom, and Ken Blalock.

Mrs. Dale Fox was the organ accompanist and Mrs. Earle Anderson was soloist.

The four-tiered wedding cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Cole and served at the reception in the church parlor.

The couple honeymooned at a new living at 929 North Main York, San Dimas Canyon Rd., La Verne.

The bride, a Pomona High School graduate, attended Ft. Wayne Bible College, Ind., and was graduated from Chaffey College School of Nursing in the sixth set; Carol Jones will attend Anna College and will graduate in May with a degree in missionary nursing.

As a registered nurse, Mrs. Hurst works part time at the Glendora Hospital.

Mr. Hurst was graduated from Chaffey High School and attended Chaffey College. He served with the Air Force and is now in the National Guard. He is employed at a market in Ontario and plans to study at Anna College in September.

Claremont Man Operates Pomona Radio Station, Pledges Public Service, Good Music

A "new sound" is emanating from Pomona and flowing into the San Gabriel Valley.

It is being produced in one station K-KAR in south Pomona. The station owner calls it "FM listening on AM."

The Abbots London, Claremont head of INTERSTATE Broadcasters Inc. and general manager of the 1220 clear channel AM station began service during daylight hours from studios at 1430 E. Phillips Blvd.

London, who has been laying plans for his station since 1955, defines his sound simply as "producing programs the entire family wants to hear in a mature, professional manner."

"We want the public to feel that this is their station, that it is dedicated to presenting what they want to hear, and to local community public service support."

As an example of the "FM sound on AM" radio the station is dedicated to producing, London cites the fact that rock 'n roll and other "way out" music is "out."

"In music we have one consistent format which we call 'Family Hit Parade' consisting of standard and pop music as produced by well-known musicians throughout the world," London says.

Another London policy is not to present church broadcasts on Sunday.

"I don't feel radio stations should commercialize on religion by making money out of sitting time for religious broadcasts. We devote ten hours from 7 to 9 a.m. Sunday to presenting a schedule of family church activities as submitted by pastors. We also play appropriate music for Sunday listening, but no org. or church music."

"One of the many other reasons that is gaining gratifying acceptance is K-KAR Datebook, a public service feature dedicated to Pomona Valley activities of church, fraternal, civic and social groups," London says.

He explained this service consists of announcing activities of the various groups four times an hour throughout the day. Under the Datebook plan, a specific announcement can be repeated more than once a day or even several times a week, depending on the number of groups participating, he added.

The station also has a five-minute new broadcast on the hour and a one-minute broadcast on the half hour.

Weather information is given in the news broadcasts and twice on the hour.

London says future plans call for more public service features, including some that will utilize local and area colleges.

The station also will cover local news events. It is producing programs for the fashion-conscious woman, the housemaker, teenagers and businessmen, he said.

London, a veteran of nearly 25 years in radio, has invested more than $100,000 in his station. Located on six acres, it includes three 100-foot transmitting towers and the latest in broadcasting equipment.

He says the station's primary signal has the equivalent of 3,000 watts and plans "are beyond the formidable stage for increasing the power and for becoming an FM as well as an AM station."

"BRAIN" SESSION — The staff of new radio station K-KAR in South Pomona, gets together for a program planning session. From the left are Abbots London, general manager; William C. Deane, program director; Charles Powers, general sales manager; JoAnne Warner, office manager and traffic supervisor; John Rice, member of the sales department; and Jack Fleming, announcer. Other staff members are Harry Gelf, announcer, and John Young, chief engineer. (P-B photo)

An abrupt change brought Pomona Valley night was here this morning, after several days of mainly cloudy and unsettled weather, and a outlook is for pleasant and moderate weather again Sunday. A low temperature was a cool 60 degrees on Pomona City Hall lawn, but the Weather Bureau looked for about the normal 71 this afternoon and tomorrow. Most of California is expected to have sunny days and mild temperatures. Some night and early morning clouds are forecast in coastal and adjacent Southern California areas, and some visible high clouds over the central interior. The Weather Bureau said a low pressure center moving across the Pacific Northwest may cause some cloudiness and possible rain showers in extreme Northern California tomorrow.

Legal Men Eager To Win Public Favor

Nine out of 10 California Bar Assn. lawyers are willing to volunteer their time and talent in an effort to improve relations with the public, according to a report from the association. Of 10,000 lawyers who answered the bar association poll, 68 per cent said they believe that the climate of public opinion in California is "generally favorable" to the practice of law. Some lawyers offered to answer pamphlets available in their offices, to speak before business and civic groups, to develop its own public relations program, to cooperate with newspapers on specific problems to familiarize the public with the practice of law. Nearly four out of five said they believe any public information project should stress "preventive law" that is keeping people out of legal trouble. Seventy per cent of the judges in the association agreed. Many lawyers felt that lack of understanding communication with their clients and the public was the worst handicap lawyers face. They also came up for better enforcement of the rules of professional conduct and the need to encourage young lawyers to take part actively in public affairs.

Shell Vows To Stay in GOP Race

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell, R-Los Angeles, voted Wednesday night he would remain a Republican gubernatorial candidate at least through the June primary election.

"There will be a restricted GOP primary unless I am the only candidate," Shell said on hearing that former Lt. Gov. Harold Hecht, Democrat, had withdrawn from the race.

Power's withdrawal left Shell and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon the main candidates. Former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight withdrew because of his health.

Shell also said he was "happy" that Powers had quit. Powers claimed the chair had been "stomped in the face of my ambitions."

"I'm sorry to see Rich drop out under adverse conditions that he indicates," said Shell. Referring to Powers' statement about "stomping," Shell said:

"As far as this is concerned, it has been very obvious that my candidacy is not pushing me. The people working for and pushing me are at the front line."

Stuttering His Trademark

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Roscoe Ates, the stuttering comedian who was a familiar figure in Hollywood films for years, died today. He was 67.

Also made his living by acting, but he made a hobby of curing others of the speech defect.

"It is nothing but a habit," he once said of stuttering.

He now from experience would be the best person for curing stuttering. There he cured himself.

Born in Hattiesburg, Miss., Jan. 29, 1895, he acted as a runner at a concert hall in New Orleans, recovering when he majored in the violin. One of his classes was group singing.

Ats discovered that when he was singing he didn't stutter.

"I thought," he said later, "why can't I talk and sing? I decided I must be in luck—tapping his head and nothing happened."

He had to talk himself off his stammer by reciting songs by heart, then practicing tongue-twisting words while a mirror watched him.

Vanderbilt and motion pictures discovered Ates from a radio show he first wrote. After entering the movie in 1925, he distinguished his way through some memorable roles. He was a starring comedian in "Walkie Talkie," "The Champ" and a starring role in "The printer in 'Carmen'."

Prison Chief Raps County Local Judges

SACRAMENTO (AP)—California's prison chief Thursday blasted local judges and county government for continuing to overwork the state prison.

Richard A. McCre, administrator of the Youth and Adult Corrections Agency, said judges send some defendants, particularly women, to state prisons because local jails can't handle them.

"It's illogical," commented McCre, "for the county judges to send women to state prisons because local jails can't handle them."

The committee is investigating recent prison disturbances including several stabbings and a riot.

McCre said prisons are overcrowded, and an economic recession "could plunge us heading into disaster." He suggested the state give money to counties to build rehabilitation programs.

County District Attorney Danaher said it may cost $10 million in the next five years to reduce overcrowding "to workable levels."

Guard Probe Ordered by Gen. Hill

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The head of the California National Guard Thursday ordered an investigation of its 70th Infantry Reserve to find out if it is doing any other endevour besides its military duties.

Gen. Robert L. Hill said he was surprised by two reports of reserve duty and danger activity. A San Diego reserve unit kept files containing reports on alleged subversive and "secret" military information, which were used by a private investigator.

The files were seized by Hill and transferred to an address in Sacramento. A Mrs. Helen Wyang, 52, of Alhambra, said she was worried about an address in Sacramento.

Jews To Dedicate Temple Tomorrow

Dedication ceremonies will be held tomorrow night at Temple Beth Israel, the Pomona Valley Jewish community's new synagogue, marking a new era in the local congregation's history.

The ceremony will coincide with the beginning of Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights.

Since the temple was organized, members have met for worship in stores, a multi-purpose building and a Christian church; now they have a real synagogue home.

Located at 3013 N. San Antonio Ave., the new facility, which tomorrow will expand to 28,000 square feet, includes a 45-seat sanctuary, five classrooms, a kitchen, social hall, library, offices, an outdoor worship area and off-street parking.

Total cost is $305,000.

Founded in August, 1933, with approximately 30 families, the group called itself the "Jewish Community Center of Pomona and Surrounding Territories."

For years the Temple members met in makeshift quarters including, first—until 1948—two old stores on Second Street, then in their own multi-purpose building on Orange Avenue and finally in the Claremont Congregational Church.

They met in the church while their new synagogue was being built, because the old property on Orange Avenue had been sold to the Salvation Army. The offer made by the Claremont church of its facilities was a display of generosity and good will, said Temple members.

As soon as the property on Orange Grove Avenue was sold to the Salvation Army in 1961, Everett Foster, A.I.A., was engaged to begin plans for the new synagogue.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held on March 1 of this year, with the contract awarded to William LeGrand, general contractor, Ontario.

From its founding until 1962, the Jewish congregation

TEMPLE BETH ISRAEL—Participants in dedication ceremonies of the new Temple Beth Israel tomorrow will be Dr. Herbert Eisen, left, and Ted Goldstein, of the building committee, followed the traditional form (last summer).

Other rabbis who have joined the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, then 1949 are Samson Levy, Mishel Rosen and Motin Band, identifying itself with the liberal Jewish movement.

Temple building committee members are Ted Goldstein, new members 210 families Dr. Herbert L. Eisen, Joseph served by Rabbi Irving A. Horst, Herman Matsoff, Har-Blas, who assumed the post, old Savage and Mrs. Sherman Delman.

Past presidents of the local congregation are: Mark Weiss, Julius Frensdorf, Harry Gross, Iman, Jack Greenberg, Harold Savage, Joe Greene, Herman Matsoff, Dr. H. L. Eisen and Joseph Hoch.

Rabbi Matsoff will deliver a dedication address to the congregation, and the Junior Choir will give its program performance, directed by Mrs. Fred Silberberg.

Youth Wins Government Study Honor

Robert W. Hall, 21, son of Mrs. Elmer Hall, minister from the Pomona Baptist Church, to the Camp, is among 101 honorees from 45 colleges attending the American University Washington Semester program.

Hall, whose parents are now in Leopoldville, Republic of Congo, attends the University of Washington on a scholarship to be in 1963.

The Washington Semester program is designed to provide students with first-hand knowledge of national government in action.

Students come into close contact with a wide variety of social activities covering the legislative, judicial and executive branches. Each student writes a research paper on a subject of his choice, gives regular classes at the American University and attends industry sponsored seminars.

During the semester the students meet senators, representatives, labor and management leaders, lobbyists, politicians and other personalities.

Increase of 12,000 Seen For Pomona Area in 1963

Forecast Not Pipe Dream, Says Shaffer

The Pomona area is predicted to have a population increase of 12,000 persons each year, mainly outside of the city limits, but within the Pomona metropolitan area, according to a report by the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday at the City Clubhouse.

Shaffer said the area between the south and north ends of Kellogg Hill and Diamond Hill on the west and east ends of the city will eventually hold over 50,000 residents.

He said that the coming of the Pomona Freeway will reduce the time required to travel from the city to the airport, and that the Pomona area is becoming more attractive than the suburbs.

Shaffer also said that the Pomona area is becoming more attractive than the suburbs because of its location and the fact that it is a growing area.

More Widows Eligible for Vet Pensions

Widows of World War I and Korean Conflict veterans are now eligible for pensions on an equal basis with World War I veterans.

Prior to July 1, 1963, widows of World War I and Korean Conflict veterans were eligible for pensions only if the veteran had a definitely ascertainable service-connected disability at the time of his death.

No such requirement, however, changed this and the eligibility of widows of these periods of military service has been expanded.

Briefly, the pension requirements now are:

The deceased veteran himself must have had at least 90 days of service, part of which was during the war, unless discharged for service-connected disability, or he was receiving pension or retirement pay for a wartime service-connected disability, and in those cases, he had been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

The widow's income is not more than $1,000 annually (with a child or children of the veteran, not more than $1,200 annually) and she is not the possessor of an estate so large that it is reasonable to be expected to maintain her support.

Widows of World War I and Korean Conflict veterans who applied for pensions prior to July 1, 1963, and were found eligible should apply under the new law if they believe their income may be within prescribed limits.

First Event of Jewish Holy Days Set Wednesday in New Sanctuary

The first observance of the Jewish Holy Days to be held in the new sanctuary of Temple Beth Israel will commence with an 8 p.m. service Wednesday night, the start of Rosh Hashanah, or the Jewish New Year.

Rabbi Irving A. Mandel, spiritual leader of the congregation, will conduct the services marking the New Year.

Rosh Hashanah, which begins on the 15th day of the Jewish month of Tishrei, is celebrated for two days, most Reform Jews for one.

It marks the start of the most solemn period of the Jewish calendar, the High Holy Days or 10 days of penitence, which conclude at sundown Sept. 28 with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

Jewish families throughout the world will gather at similar services to begin the 10-day period of self-evaluation.

Rabbi Mandel will be assisted at Temple Beth Israel by an augmented choir led by the direction of Mrs. Fred Silberberg of Claremont. Cantorial solo will be sung by Herbert Isaacson, leader of the congregation, headed by his past deeds might be entered hopefully and happily into the New Year.

Glad To Be Back

Boys Choir Member Returns Home From Six-Month Tour of World

By BELL LANGLEY
P.B. Staff Writer
After missing the world for the past six months, Edward Chris Bechard is glad to be back in Pomona.

Chris arrived home Tuesday from an around the world trip with the Mitchell Boys Choir. Eight Southern California boys left April 15 with Vincent Morgan, musical director, and Henry Legler, tour manager.

The boys visited 23 different countries, covering the big nations of Monaco and Vatican City. Sponsored by the U.S. Information Service, most of the concerts were for servicemen overseas.

Chris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bechard, 2163 Yorba Dr., has been a member of the Hollywood-based choir two years. He can sing songs in 18 languages.

"I learned a lot about the world, its people and the customs of the different nations," Chris said. It was also helpful for social relations, living with the same people for six months.

His favorite country was Italy. "There are so many interesting things to see there and the people are very enthusiastic," he said. He added that his favorite meal is spaghetti.

Being Catholic, Chris also enjoyed seeing the Vatican. The choir visited at the closing of Pope Paul VI's coronation.

While in Germany, the choir boys went to West Berlin, where they saw the Berlin Wall.

"On the western side, Berlin is modern and progressive. On the other side, the bombed buildings still stand. East Berlin looked like a ghost town," Chris observed.

Vienna, Austria, a city noted for its music, was a highlight of the trip. The boys visited the castle of the Vienna Boy Choir, a similar group.

The boys had some fun in Vienna, so they took their baseball and had a park and started a game.

"Before we knew it, we had attracted quite a crowd, and we put on an exhibition American baseball for them," Chris said.

The toured Yugoslavia at the Leon Curcain county, Belgrade, where the group were especially friendly to them. Chris said, Americans are still a novelty there.

While no concerts were scheduled in the Communist country, the boys had a busy program they put on special show. They also gave American cigarettes as presents.

In Iran, the choir camped on a group of young boys clothed in rags. They took their picture with a polaroid camera and gave them the picture.

"They couldn't believe it they never thought anyone would ever take their picture," Chris said.

Along Korea, Thailand, the Philippines and Japan were the stops in the Orient. In Japan, they appeared on television and toured military bases. Chris said they were granted many favors by the military.

On the ship between Hawaii and San Francisco, the first Dodge Race entered by the World Series. Their first contact with the game since the season started in April.

"It was extra fun as we heard our boys, Bob Mitchell play the Dodge Stadium as well," Chris laughed.

After one whole day at some amazing team cooking, Chris was back to work.

The choir is appearing in "Haban and the Seven Haberdashers" with Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra. It will be Chris' first movie, but he has appeared often on television.

A former student at St. Joseph's School, Chris entered his new life of music when he was accepted by Mitchell after a tryout.

He attended a special school in Hollywood with tutors. He lives there on weekends, when most of the choir's performances are scheduled.

However, age is catching up with him. One his voice changes, he must leave the choir. Chris hopes for one more year.

He will then return to normal life in Pomona. Music is just a hobby for Chris, but he hopes to become a dentist.

What could be better than sweet music while a tooth is pulled?

HOME AT LAST—After touring the world for six months, Chris Bechard has a lot to tell his mother, Mrs. Raymond Bechard, 2163 Yorba Dr. He was one of eight boys who went around the world as members of the Mitchell Boys Choir. On the table are the many souvenirs he picked up. In back is a map that Mr. Bechard used to mark where his son was as he received his letters. (P.B. photo)

Temple Beth Israel Schedules Series of Religious Lectures

A series of lectures, themed "Know Your Neighbors Better," will highlight the fall adult education program of Temple Beth Israel, 3033 N. San Antonio Ave., Pomona, beginning Monday. Rabbi Irving A. Mandel announced today.

Offered to adults of the area will be a course in Hebrew at 7:30 p.m., under the direction of Eli Zohar.

Following the classes each Monday at 8:30 p.m. panel energy from various denominations and lay authorities on theology will explore a variety of religious aspects.

Explaining the purpose of the lectures, Rabbi Mandel said: "Each one of our speakers underscored the fact that there are honest differences of religious belief among the citizens of our community. It is part of our American heritage to respect difference. And it will be well for each of us to remember that this country of ours is the product of no single race, creed, or class."

Opening the series Monday will be the Rev. William J. Harry, pastor of Our Lady of Assumption Church, Claremont who will speak on "Judaism and the Catholic Church."

Other speakers and subjects slated for the coming weeks are Oct. 20, Dr. Sidney E. Mead, professor of American church history, Claremont School of Theology; "The Living Experiment: Growth of American Religion"; Nov. 4, Dr. John B. Cobb Jr., associate professor of systematic theology, Claremont School of Theology; "Christian Theology Today: How It Affects Judaism"; Nov. 11, Dr. Eric L. Truitt, professor of New Testament, Claremont School of Theology; "Attitudes: Today's Jews in the New Testament Gospel"; and Nov. 18, Dr. Peter Reckard, chaplain of Claremont Colleges and lecturer in religion, "Chilly from Dissunity: The Meaning of the Incommensal Movement."

Registration for the adult education classes has already reached a maximum but consideration will be given to extra students. Unregistered students may sign up Monday at class time in the Temple's Parlor.

IS NO PROBLEM
COLUMBIAN, Oct. 9.—Highway interdict construction noise nearby has made use of a loudspeaker system noisy in three county common pleas courthouses, the presiding judge, Joseph J. Klarer, says.

In discussing the matter with county commissioners, the judge suggested microphones, for witness chairs only. Witnesses often cannot be heard, he explained, but he said he felt attorneys and judges would talk loud enough.

B'nai B'rith Art Exhibit Scheduled

SKIING IN HIS FASHION — Next fore, head of Yosemite Ski School, will show his film, "Ski Time" during a fashion show of skiswear Monday night at 8 in Buffers' Fellowship Room. Skiswear, featuring what's right for the slopes and lodges, whether it's Yosemite or St. Moritz, will be shown. These local ski clubs are participating in the free show.

The first nonprofessional artists exhibit for benefit of B'nai B'rith charities will be conducted Nov. 20 to Dec. 2. Mr. and Mrs. Sam H. Zukerman, sponsors and co-chairmen of the exhibit, said today.

Open to all living nonprofessional artists 15 years of age or older, they are invited to submit original works in oils, water colors, sculptures and other media. Exhibit rules provide that all entries must be in ink.

Purpose of the exhibit twofold, said the Zukermans. It is to acquaint the community with the work of Southern California nonprofessional artists and to raise funds for the multitude of B'nai B'rith charities.

"It is another demonstration of the worthwhile community activities of B'nai B'rith, who is now celebrating its 120th anniversary of service to the community of the nation and the free world."

Rules and instructions for the exhibit stipulate that easels must be limited to three feet. No single dimension is to exceed 36 inches. All paintings must be framed or matted and wired for hanging.

Entry blanks with complete instructions are available at the Income Reporting Service, 1777 Indian Hill Blvd., Pomona. An entry fee of 50 cents is required and entries are to be mailed to Mr. and Mrs. Zukerman, 1577 Indian Hill Blvd.

A maximum donation of 20 per cent of the sale price of any art object sold is to be given to the True B'rith charity.

Entries must be delivered no later than Nov. 23 to 1077 Indian Hill Blvd. to be judged before the formal opening Nov. 30. Names of judges will be disclosed later.

Temple Beth Israel Dedicating Two Fresco Tablets and Memorial Light Tonight

Frescoes and perpetual light will be dedicated at 8:30 tonight at Temple Beth Israel, 3033 N. San Antonio Ave.

The frescoes are shaped as two 18-foot high tablets with the Ten Commandments written in glowing Hebrew letters. Los Angeles artist Josef Pelzig did the work.

The perpetual light is a significant feature of all synagogues, reminiscent of the ancient biblical dictum that a perpetual flame was to remain on the altar of the Temple of Jerusalem.

The perpetual light will be dedicated by Rev. and Mrs. Mary Weiss of Chlois, in memory of Julius and Tillie Goldstein and Bertha and Abraham Weiss.

One fresco tablet has been contributed in memory of Joel Saffron by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Saffron and a large group of friends who established the Joel Saffron Memorial Fund at Beth Israel.

The other fresco tablet has been contributed by Claremont Congregational Church as an emblem of friendship. The Temple worshipped and held religious school sessions in the Claremont church before its new synagogue was completed this year.

The Rev. Edward Henry, pastor of Claremont Congregational, and Dr. Harold G. Jones, former pastor of the church, will participate in the dedication ceremonies.

Mr. Henry will give the dedication address. Dr. Jones will greet the Beth Israel membership.

Other Claremont Congregational Church members will attend the event. A reception for them will be held following the dedication.

Harry Schindler, Temple president, said the dedication is another stage in the Temple's long-range plans for beautifying its interior and broadening its scope.

Boy becomes Full-Fledged Hunter at 13

Lowell Jones, 13, bagged his first deer last weekend to become a full-fledged hunter in the Boy W. area family.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Jones of 1841 Greenway Rd., are veteran hunters and Lowell has accompanied them on hunting expeditions since he was seven. But this is the first year he has had a license to hunt.

He got his deer near Boulder in a remote area, dressed it and carried it out. The doe weighed more than 100 pounds.

Lowell is an eighth grader at Marshall Junior High School.

Diabetes Detection Drive Set

A mass testing program is planned this month to discover an estimated 50,000 persons in Los Angeles County who have diabetes and are unaware of their condition.

The Diabetes Detection Week program will take place Nov. 17-23 under the sponsorship of the Diabetes Association of Southern California. Dr. Cyrus E. Elmer, assistant professor of medicine at Loma Linda University, will head the "Diabetes Detection Week" drive.

Diabetes is a chronic disease which now ranks nationally as the fifth cause of death. This disease is often the unannounced cause of such serious bodily impairment as heart trouble, kidney disorders, gangrene and blindness.

Dr. Elmer said, "The best health officer's secondary purpose is to educate the public to the symptoms and treatment of diabetes which now ranks nationally as the fifth cause of death. This disease is often the unannounced cause of such serious bodily impairment as heart trouble, kidney disorders, gangrene and blindness."

Alliance for Progress Program Taking on New Meaning in Brazil

By ERNEST MILLER
 RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — There's a new step in the Alliance for Progress in Brazil. It doesn't take much to put it there but it could take a lot of work to keep it there.

The step comes from the aid work of Brazil's new post-revolutionary government toward its nationwide aid program launched by the late President John Kennedy.

Brazil's post-11. 3. government has taken a new step in its attitude toward the Alliance for Progress.

Any lingering doubts were shipped away when President Humberto Castello Branco recently signed to be present at the signing of a $15 million Alliance-supported road-building program in northeast Brazil.

Castello said he wanted to "become personally acquainted" with the Alliance for Progress.

For the members of the U. S. Agency for International Development (USAID), the sign-off when Castello said he was present at the signing of the $15 million program was an extreme sign of good news.

The nearly three-decade-old program, the first of its kind, was the first of its kind.

Albino had food deficiencies and, in some cases, outright hostility from former President John Goulart's government.

Goulart's attitude shifted down to the lowest echelon in the government and led directly to the Alliance.

But Castello's attitude is expected to filter down and, in the words of Jack Ruby, chief of USAID in Brazil, it "could make a substantial difference."

You now already had a difference in the speed with which things are moving.

For example, since the revolution through April 1, the United States has signed agreements with Brazil for loans amounting to $100 million.

In the 10 months prior to the signing of the $15 million program, the U. S. had only $10 million in commitments.

Nonetheless, there are two immediately obvious things in the air.

One is the fact that it wasn't only Castello's attitude that changed. There has been a change in the attitude of the U. S. side as well, mostly in the form of increased aid.

USAID itself.

Critics say the Alliance for Progress moved too slowly to be effective and to have the needed political and popular support.

Kubish insists that "the Alliance has been much better than is generally realized."

He says the Alliance is only a little behind and a lot farther along than most people think.

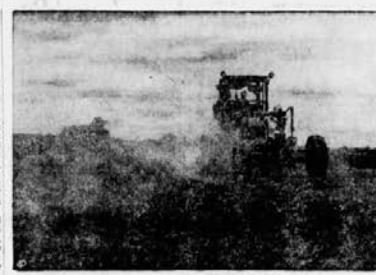

Kubish is a tall and well-dressed man with a friendly smile. He is 40 years old and has been in Brazil since 1958.

He is currently working on a road-building program.

ROAD WORK — Scraper works on a road in northeast Brazil. The $15 million Alliance for Progress project began since Brazil's new president, Humberto Castello Branco, came to power. More than 400 miles of roads are already under contract in the southeast.

NEW HOME — A girl who once lived in a slum in Recife, Brazil, waters flowers outside her new home in Vila John Kennedy, built by Alliance for Progress funds. There are many such projects scattered throughout Brazil.

Jailed Rabbi Sends Talk

After Sabbath services Friday evening at Temple Beth Israel, 233 S. Elm Avenue, there will be a discussion based on recorded comments of Rabbi Meir Kahish, former spiritual leader of Temple Beth Israel, who was one of the rabbis jailed in St. Augustine, Fla., for disrupting a civil rights in the South.

The site is the pulpit at the temple in Pomona for five years until 1961 when he left for Temple Israel, Outpost of the Nation in New York State.

He formerly was president of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the American Anti-Defamation League, for the United States. He is a past or

Scan Profile: Marvin Abrams

He Has a Quiet Way of Leading

By BOB NAGEY
P-B Staff Writer

This is the profile of an "organization man." It is a study of soft spoken, quiet Dr. Marvin C. Abrams, a senior physicist-chemist at General Dynamics, who is proving that flamboyance and the hard approach are not necessary ingredients of leadership.

A profound sensitivity to people characterizes his approach; a gentle respect and liking for his coworkers form the basis of his relationships.

Abrams is an organization man in the sense that he is an organizer. He loves to get things the ground, even if in the shuffle his ideas come out altered at times.

It is a paradox that despite his perceptiveness, many of his coworkers feel almost compelled to help his ideas along with their own interpretations, if only to make clear what he means.

For Abrams is an inveterate circumlocutionist whose emergence as a leader despite that impediment is a triumph of his intellect, warmth and willingness to listen, to share, and to "interface."

And although the 38-year-old scientist has served on numerous committees in the past, including a study commission of the Pomona Parks and Recreation, the community has taken note of his leadership qualities only lately.

Currently he is serving as president of Temple Beth Israel, the area's largest Jewish congregation, and as chairman of the Pomona Citizens Committee on School Integration, formed by the Board of Education.

His outlook as head of that committee mirrors the difficulties of the job.

"The moment anyone mentions school integration," he declared, "people immediately jump to the conclusion that we mean busing. There are many other possibilities including open registration and zone changes. We don't know what we're going to recommend. Maybe a combination of two things, maybe everything, maybe nothing."

"We know this: Surveys show that even if you give a segregated school the best teachers and equipment to encourage learning, there is little change in motivation. But put a disadvantaged child with a group of children who are motivated, and watch him come alive!"

Abrams believes integration is the answer to the race problem. But how to go about it is something he's not quite ready to propose.

Rabbi Irving A. Mandel, his spiritual leader, calls him "a conservative liberal." His wife, Shirley, an honorary life member of the Yorba PTA, admits he often vents his feelings in letters to his associates, his congressman and the press.

It is a good way to record one's position without direct confrontation. Not that Abrams is weak or fearful. Far from it. It's just that his letters rarely wind up cutting off communications. And free-flowing communication is his lifeline.

At work, Abrams is a senior staff scientist in charge of the research group on the physics and chemistry of gaseous systems. Formidable? Wait!

In the past 10 years his work has ranged from the identification of combustion products by theoretical means and microwave spectroscopy to studies on the optical emission of combustion systems and investigations on the interaction of electromagnetic radiation with the plasma in rocket plumes.

But Abrams, a native of Reno and a graduate of the University of Nevada who earned his doctorate in science at Washington State University, takes a much lighter approach to his profession.

"A chemical physicist," he grins, "is a man who talks physics when he is among chemists and discusses chemistry with physicist. When he is among other chemical physicists, he talks about politics and women."

Nor does Abrams take himself too seriously over this business of leadership. Rarely, if ever, does he force his ideas on others. He is at his best as an arbitrator.

"Sure, I like to see my ideas implemented," he agrees, "but not at the expense of the democratic process."

And he really means it. His respect for the feelings of others may be one reason why he tries to avoid direct confrontation whenever he can.

He dislikes the word "No." He rarely uses the phrase "You're wrong." That would leave the other person no leeway. He prefers the roundabout way: "There are a few things in what you are attempting to put across that might be subjected to closer examination. Don't you believe that . . . etc."

There was the time they got his phone number wrong in a private directory.

"There is a man in China," he told the person responsible for the error, "who must be very angry at me. He's been getting some of my phone calls. Now, I don't mind that so much; I still get plenty of calls. But if there is some way that we could placate the man in China . . ."

Abrams' preoccupation with lengthy dissertations is a contradiction to his careful use of time. Nearly every weekday noon he manages to swim a half hour at the YMCA. Nearly every weeknight he has a meeting to attend. But nearly every weekend is devoted to his family — his two children, Gale, 10, and Hal, 7½. With them he watches ball games, he roughhouses, and he trades affection.

As one gets to know him better, the impatience over his round about approach slowly turns into tolerance and then to respect. You begin to understand that there is often a pur-

His Technique May Not Be Recommended for Safety by Highway Patrol

ERIC CAMERON, 28, risked his life to head a drunken driver off the San Bernardino Freeway near Ganessa Boulevard recently, witnesses said.

The slayer is that the drunk was weaving all over the eastbound lanes at 25 miles an hour, from somewhere in the Covina area over Kellogg Hill to Pomona. Traffic was slowed for miles, but severe drivers, unaware of the danger, passed him anyway.

Cameron got in front of the erratic driver, flashed his car lights and waved the drunk over onto the shoulder in an area of freeway construction.

Cameron got no thanks from the drunk, who rammed his pickup truck into the back of Cameron's car before highway patrol officers took over.

"I wanted to get out and bug him (Cameron)," a witness said. "There could have been a terrible accident."

"I have been planning to give food and books to the orphan children for some time now and will not have enough left to buy gifts with," he wrote. His parents are rightly proud of him.

Shortly after 10:30 p.m. Friday, John Raphael Doctre Jr., 41, of Pasadena, fell asleep at the wheel and ran off the freeway near San Antonio Avenue in Pomona, the highway patrol said. He suffered minor injuries.

BROTHERHOOD GETS A YOUTHFUL START — Non-Jewish members of the Temple Beth Israel nursery school help their Jewish counterparts make decorations for Hanukkah under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Cohn. The eight day Festival of lights starts tonight at sundown.

8,000 Jews Here Noting Hanukkah

Three thousand Jews in the Pomona area will begin observing the Festival of Lights at sundown today.

The eight days of Hanukkah will run through sunset Monday, Dec. 23. The festival will commemorate the dedication of the temple and the victory of the Maccabees before the Hasmoneans in 165 B.C.

The story of the Maccabees is related in a series of books known as the Apocrypha. Services and events appropriate to Hanukkah are planned by Temple Beth Israel in men and by Temple Shalom in Ontario.

Hanukkah is a joyous occasion with many special customs. The menorah (special candelabra used for the festival) is lit daily (a minimum of one child); and foods of the same nature around latkes (potato pancakes).

The Festival of Lights originated from the account of the Maccabees that after the Jews regained the temple in Jerusalem from the Syrians, there was enough oil for the eternal light for only one day. However, through a miracle, the oil burned for eight days.
